

SAVE THE DATE

The American Museum of the Cuban Diaspora will finally open its doors to the public. Join us as we launch Miami's art season with our special preview exhibition, Luis Cruz Azaceta: Dictators, Terrorism, War and Exiles. Azaceta is the first major survey in over a decade, of an artist whose work is a cautionary tale for a world in desperate need of healing and reconciliation. Please save the following dates, and come celebrate this momentous occasion.

The American Museum of the Cuban Diaspora is a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization. The museum was made possible by the 2004 Building Better Communities bond program, enacted by the citizens of Miami-Dade County, and the generous support of the Miami-Dade County Department of Cultural Affairs and the Cultural Affairs Council, the Miami-Dade County Mayor and Board of County Commissioners. Additional funding for this exhibition was provided by Bank of America, Bacardi USA, NBCUniversal Telemundo Enterprises, and the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation. Special thanks to the City of Miami and City of Miami Mayor Tomas Regalado, City Commissioner Willy Gort, and County Commissioners Bruno Barreiro and Esteban Bovo.
